Other necessary information (if any)- The girls from First Semester of Economics, Geography and Education Departments were delighted to have a Gokhale Alumni, Dr Nayan Mitra for a seminar on Sustainable Development. . After coming to know about Dr Mitra and her efforts towards this mission, the entire hall was rapt in attention. The entire seminar was filled with lively interactions as Dr Mitra walked us through the concepts and scopes of Sustainable Development: the five 'P's of Sustainability, the seventeen Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), and the Linear and Circular Models of Production and Consumption. There was also an e-interaction segment, where the students accessed a website, and answered questions which then showed their 'carbon footprint'. It was not only an enlightening afternoon, but also a hope-filled one. She reiterated that the girls, as the current youth, have the potential to right the previous wrong. They were made aware of the drastic situation the planet is facing, which is essentially the first step towards taking responsibility for our planet.
